

Fact sheet for holders of foreign driving licences from states outside the European Union and the European Economic Area on driving licence provisions in the Federal Republic of Germany

This fact sheet provides you with information on the most important German provisions for holders of foreign driving licences from states that are not members of the European Union or parties to the Agreement on the European Economic Area (EEA). (Iceland, Liechtenstein and Norway are EEA states). If you have any further questions, please contact your local driver licensing authority at your city or district council.

1. Taking up normal residence in the Federal Republic of Germany.

Whether you will be allowed to continue using your driving licence in the Federal Republic of Germany will depend on your residency status or where you take up your “normal residence”.

Put simply, your normal residence is where you live for at least 185 days each year.

Commuters do not take up normal residence in the Federal Republic of Germany. Their foreign driving licence will be recognized in the Federal Republic of Germany for an unlimited period, as long as the licence itself is valid. “Commuters” are defined as the holders of a domestic driving licence issued by another country or an International Driving Permit who have their residence abroad but drive or ride motor vehicles in the Federal Republic of Germany because they are employed here and who regularly return to their residence abroad. Students or schoolchildren can also be “commuters”.

Holders of foreign driving licences who have taken up employment in the Federal Republic of Germany but only return to the family residence they maintain abroad occasionally are not classified as commuters.

As long as you have not taken up normal residence in the Federal Republic of Germany, you may drive or ride motor vehicles with your valid foreign driving licence for. If there are any conditions and restrictions on your driving licence, you must also comply with them when driving in the Federal Republic of Germany. Please note that your passenger car licence is not automatically valid here. This is the case, in particular, if you have not yet reached the minimum age required in the Federal Republic of Germany for the category in question.

After taking up normal residence in the Federal Republic of Germany, you are entitled to drive or ride motor vehicles for another six months. After this period, your driving licence will no longer be recognized. If you wish to continue driving or riding a motor vehicle on German roads, you will then require a driving licence issued in the Federal Republic of Germany.

In exceptional cases, the driver licensing authority may, upon request, extend the deadline by up to six months if you can prove to their satisfaction that you will not have your normal residence in the Federal Republic of Germany for longer than twelve months.

2. Using your foreign driving licence if you do not have your normal residence in the Federal Republic of Germany

2.1. If you hold a valid

- domestic driving licence or
- an International Driving Permit in accordance with the International Convention relative to Motor Traffic of 24 April 1926, the Convention on Road Traffic of 8 November 1968 or the Convention on Road Traffic of 1949, you may drive or ride motor vehicles of the category that is indicated on your licence in the Federal Republic of Germany.

Please note that an International Driving Permit in accordance with the Convention on Road Traffic of 8 November 1968 is only valid in conjunction with the domestic driving licence it is based on. An International Driving Permit by itself is not sufficient.

If you have not been issued an International Driving Permit, a translation of your driving licence is required in the following cases:

- domestic driving licences that are not in the German language;
- domestic driving licences that do not conform to the provisions of Annex 6 of the Convention on Road Traffic of 8 November 1968.

German translations may be prepared by:

- German motoring organizations;
- court-appointed and certified interpreters and translators;
- masters of German sea-going ships;

- internationally recognized motoring organizations of the state that issued the driving licence;
- official agencies of the state that issued the driving licence.

The Federal Republic of Germany does not require a translation of licences issued by the following states: Andorra, Hong Kong, Monaco, New Zealand, San Marino, Senegal and Switzerland.

2.2. Cases in which your foreign driving licence does not entitle you to drive in the Federal Republic of Germany

Your driving licence does not entitle you to drive or ride a motor vehicle in the Federal Republic of Germany:

- if the licence you hold is a learner licence or any other provisional licence;
- if you have not yet reached the minimum age required in the Federal Republic of Germany for the category in question;
- if you had your normal residence in the Federal Republic of Germany at the time you obtained the foreign licence;
- if your driving licence has been withdrawn in the Federal Republic of Germany by a court of law with the withdrawal being provisional or non-appealable or by an administrative authority with the withdrawal being immediately enforceable or non-appealable, or if you have been refused a driving licence with the refusal being non-appealable or if the only reason your driving licence has not been withdrawn is that you have relinquished it in the meantime;
- if you are banned from being issued a driving licence due to a non-appealable court decision; or
- if you have been disqualified or your driving licence has been confiscated, seized or impounded in the Federal Republic of Germany, in the state that issued your driving licence or in the state in which you have your normal residence.

Please note that you are not permitted to drive or ride a motor vehicle if you do not have, or no longer have, an entitlement to drive, and that doing so will be treated as driving without a driving licence and penalized accordingly.

3. Issuing of a German driving licence on the basis of a foreign driving licence

If you take up normal residence in the Federal Republic of Germany, you will need a German driving licence no later than after six months, unless the driver licensing authority has made an exception and extended this deadline (see 2.1).

The German driving licence is valid for 15 years. After the expiry of this period of validity, the issue of a new driving licence is required. Upon expiry, the driving licence document is simply exchanged by the administration. The exchange neither requires additional regular medical examinations nor any other kinds of examinations. Such examinations are only required for certain professions that have a special responsibility (among others, professional drivers, bus/coach drivers).

The conditions governing the issuing of a German driving licence vary depending on which country you obtained your licence in:

- in a country that is listed in Annex 11 of the Regulations for the Licensing of Drivers (3.1) or
- in a country that is not listed in Annex 11 of the Regulations for the Licensing of Drivers (3.2).

3.1. Issuing of a German driving licence to holders of driving licences from a country listed in Annex 11 of the Regulations for the Licensing of Drivers<sup>[SEP]</sup>

You should clarify with your local driver licensing authority which driving licences can be issued and under which conditions they will be issued.

When you take a practical test, you have to be accompanied by a driving instructor.

A medical examination, including a visual acuity test, is required when applying for

- a driver's licence of the classes C1, C1E, C, CE (HGV), D1, D1E, DE (bus/coach) , bus/coach drivers aged 50 or over must also prove, by submitting a medical certificate issued by an approved assessment body for driver fitness or a medico-psychological certificate confirming that their ability to cope with stress and their faculties of orientation, concentration, attention and reaction are adequate.

The following documents have to be enclosed with the application for a driving licence:

- an official identity document of the applicant (identity card or passport);

- the certificate of registration from the Residents' Registration Office,
- a recent photograph that meets the requirements of the Regulations Implementing the Passport Act (Passverordnung);
- when applying for a Category C1, C, CE (HGV), D1, D1E, D or DE (bus/coach) licence, the certificates and/or opinions regarding the medical examinations, regarding the visual acuity test and regarding the special examination for bus/coach drivers;
- the original of the foreign national driver licence (the International Driving Permit is not sufficient) together with a translation into the German language, unless the driver licensing authority waives the requirement of a translation on an exceptional basis,
- a statement declaring that the foreign driver licence is still valid.

In individual cases, the driver licensing authority may also demand the submission of a certificate of good conduct, or order a driving test, if facts have been established that give reason to believe that you no longer have the necessary knowledge and skills relating to the operation of motor vehicles.

If you carry goods or passengers for commercial purposes on public roads with motor vehicles that require a driving licence of Category C1, C1E, C, CE, D1, D1E, D or DE, the provisions of the Professional Driver Qualification Act (Berufskraftfahrer-Qualifikations-Gesetz, BKrFQG) and the Professional Driver Qualification Ordinance (Berufskraftfahrer-Qualifikations-Verordnung, BKrFQV) have to be complied with. For more detailed information, please contact your local driver licensing authority. You will also find additional information in the "Guidance for nationals from states outside the European Union and the European Economic Area" published on the website of the Federal Office for Goods Transport (BAG).

When your German driving licence is issued, your foreign driving licence will be retained and sent back to the competent authority of the state that issued it or will remain with the driver licensing authority for safekeeping.

It is not possible to exchange foreign taxi, hire car, ambulance and similar licences.

3.2. Issuing of a German driving licence to holders of driving licences from countries that are not listed in Annex 11 of the Regulations for the Licensing of Drivers<sup>[1]</sup> After taking up normal residence, your foreign driving licence entitles you to drive or ride motor vehicles for six months only. However, it can still be exchanged for a German driving licence after that period under simplified conditions.

The following documents have to be enclosed with the application for a driving licence:

- an official identity document of the applicant (identity card or passport);
- the certificate of registration from the Residents' Registration Office,
- a recent photograph that meets the requirements of the Regulations Implementing the Passport Act (Passverordnung);
- when applying for a Category A, A2, A1, B or BE driving licence, a visual acuity test certificate from an officially recognized body; when applying for a Category C1, C1E, C, CE (HGV), D1, D1E, D or DE (bus/coach) driving licence, a medical certificate proving adequate visual acuity;
- when applying for a Category C1, C1E, C, CE, D1, D1E, D or DE driving licence, additionally a medical certificate attesting to your state of health; applicants for a Category D1, D, DE or driving licence who are aged 50 or over also have to submit a medical certificate issued by an approved assessment body for driver fitness or a medico-psychological certificate confirming that their ability to cope with stress and their faculties of orientation, concentration, attention and reaction are adequate;
- evidence of participation in a first aid training course,
- the original of the foreign national driver licence (the International Driving Permit is not sufficient) together with a translation into the German language, unless the driver licensing authority waives the requirement of a translation on an exceptional basis,
- a statement declaring that your foreign driving licence is still valid.

In individual cases, the driver licensing authority may also demand the submission of a certificate of good conduct.

You will be issued the German driving licence for the corresponding category of motor vehicles once you have passed the theory and practical tests for that category. When taking the practical test, you have to be accompanied by a driving instructor. This is only possible after the driving instructor has verified that you have the necessary knowledge, skills and understanding related to the operation of motor vehicles. If necessary, you can prepare for the test by taking a few driving lessons.

If you carry goods or passengers for commercial purposes on public roads with motor vehicles that require a driving licence of Category C1, C1E, C, CE, D1, D1E, D or DE, the provisions of the Professional Driver Qualification Act (Berufskraftfahrer-Qualifikations-Gesetz, BKrFQG) and the Professional Driver Qualification Ordinance (Berufskraftfahrer-Qualifikations-Verordnung, BKrFQV) have to be complied with. For more detailed information, please contact your local driver licensing authority. You will also find additional information in the “Guidance for nationals from states outside the European Union and the European Economic Area” published on the website of the Federal Office for Goods Transport (BAG).

No advantages for obtaining a driving licence for the carriage of passengers will be granted, even if foreign driving licences are presented that entitle their holders to drive taxis, hire cars, ambulances etc.
